

House Takes Up 500-Page Energy Conservation Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives is ready for a debate on legislation designed to change century-old habits and cope with the nation's monumental energy problems.

The House formally brought a 580-page energy bill to the floor on Friday in a procedural move. Debate on its provisions, drafted essentially as President Carter requested them in his April 20 message to Congress, begins Monday and is expected to take most of the week.

In his speech more than three months ago, Carter asked Congress to enact painful programs to conserve energy, warning that "the alternative may be a national catastrophe."

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said Carter should be pleased with the bill. "Ninety per cent of his package is there," he said.

The bill is weighted heavily toward conservation, striving to cut down on oil and natural gas consumption while encouraging industry to use as much coal as possible.

The bill would encourage improved home insulation through tax credits and discourage consumption of oil and natural gas by raising prices through taxes on use and production.

Utility rates would be altered by the bill to reflect the actual cost of producing power. Lowcost electricity for industry would be dropped while consumers would pay more for electricity at peak hours.

The legislation calls for continuing federal price controls on natural gas, and raising the price for new gas to $1.75 per thousand cubic feet from the present $1.45.

A major floor fight is expected on the question of federal price controls on the natural gas industry.

In addition, Republicans have drafted a complete energy program of their own for a House vote.

In another area, a special House energy panel recommended a doubling of the current federal gasoline tax to eight cents. A floor fight is expected over whether to raise it further or remove the hike.

Administration lobbyists plugged for the gasoline tax hike, saying it was an important signal that Americans should start reducing their gasoline consumption. They also want the revenue, an estimated $4 billion annually, set aside for federal mass transit programs and energy research.

Opponents of the provision say the gasoline tax hike is an unfair burden on Americans who have no alternative to their car for commuting and shopping.

Other crude oil tax provisions in the package would have the effect of adding another nickel to the cost of a gallon of gasoline.

While Carter got most of what he wanted from House committees, he was denied his request for standby authority to impose a tax of up to 50 cents a gallon on gasoline. Also missing from the bill is a presidential request for a tax on cars that use fuel inefficiently.

Europeans Start Annual Holiday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The gun went off today for Europe's annual race to relaxation. Millions jammed roads, border crossings and public transportation in the frenzy inaugurating the annual monthlong August holiday one vacationer called "part of our human rights."

Traffic jams up to 25 miles long were reported in Britain as families encountered inland rain and fog in the push to get to seaside resorts.

Motoring organizations reported "absolute chaos" on the main roads leading to Devon and Cornwall counties. Traffic also was heavy along routes to Britain's south coast, East Anglia, Wales and northern resorts.

In Paris vacationers headed for sunny spots. Many were bound for the Mediterranean coast and southern Spain.

Dominique Blondin, 18, took Friday off from job at a Paris bank to get a headstart on her holiday. She was headed for the Caribbean island of Martinique. Although she made reservations in March, the Friday

The exodus shut down many businesses across Europe as shopkeepers hung signs in windows announcing they had joined the rites of August.

The French Equipment Ministry's roads division estimated 5.5 million Frenchmen would be on the road this weekend. For weeks government-sponsored television commercials have urged vacationers to use side roads to avoid congestion.

Paris airport authorities estimated 3,500 commercial planes will take off and land between Friday and Monday, including more than 700 charters and extra vacation flights.

In Germany and in northern Europe the roads south were filled with vacationers heading for Italy and Yugoslavia. Even traffic on the superspeed autobahn highways of West Germany was slowed by the congestion.

Delays of up to half an hour were reported along the Austrian border. Normally the crossing takes two or three minutes.

Most German workers, like the French, Italians and many other Europeans, now get a month off each year, and most take it during August.

The French government has tried to persuade Frenchmen to take their vacations before or after August, but few listen.

Ohio Assembly Quits For Summer Recess

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's General Assembly has gone into a seven-week recess after a hectic Friday that brought action on some major bills but left other key proposals of majority Democrats hanging until September.

The last big item before the two chambers adjourned shortly before 5:30 p.m. was enactment — with some Republican help — of a budget language bill that carries spending authority for a $13 billion general appropriations bill passed earlier.

Also sent to Gov. James A. Rhodes were about two dozen other measures on subjects ranging far and wide, including an emergency bill that ostensibly will enable the state to pump about $88.8 million into Ohio's financially pinched parochial school system in the next two years.

It contains methods of distributing the funds other than instructional materials and equipment—disallowed in a June 24 U.S. Supreme Court decision. One new way will be to have the state pay for transportation of students to neutral sites to receive health services.

Majority Democrats had to leave behind some pet projects until the lawmakers return Sept. 19. Biggest among them is a highly controversial and publicized measure giving public employees bargaining rights and a limited right to strike. It was left in a conference committee to try to iron out Senate-House differences.

Also left behind were Democratic proposals to draw new congressional districts for Ohio to give Democrats — outnumbered 13-10 in the present delegation — a better chance in 1978.

A House proposal calling for changes in utility ratemaking and giving the elderly and disabled a wintertime subsidy on their utility bills, bogged down in the Senate Finance Committee.

Democratic sponsors of a teacher tenure bill, lobbied for heavily by the Democrat-oriented education lobby, will have to wait to try to override the GOP governor's veto of that legislation. They failed to round up to three-fifths majority of 60 House votes to override him in that chamber, but vowed they will try in September.

Examples of the wide ranging bills that emerged Friday are those that let the lottery commission give away trips and merchandise, in addition to cash; create new municipal courts in GOP amendments during deliberations of a conference committee that worked on the measure for more than two days earlier this week.

The legislature authorized a constitutional amendment for the November ballot which envisions a housing program for low and moderate income families. It joins another amendment, approved earlier for the same ballot, setting up a new way to pay for capital improvements.

Crawford, Hocking, and Jackson Counties, and set up a state merit scholarship program that can benefit kids in rich families if their grades are good enough.

'Flicker' Intensifies Local Mosquito Control Programs

CHECK SPRAYER EFFECTIVENESS — Bob Kramer and Hugh Barnhill of the Pickaway County Health Department periodically check the effectiveness of the ULV mister used in the mosquito control program. When working properly, the machine disseminates an invisible mist of a chemical insecticide.

By DAVE AMEY
Herald City Editor

The discovery of St. Louis encephalitis virus in the blood of a pigeon last week could ruin the remaining summer months for Pickaway Counties.

"It's just a flicker of activity," said Pickaway County Health Department pest specialist Bob Kramer, "but unless we can confine it early, it looks like another bad year." Last year, Pickaway County led the state with two confirmed cases of encephalitis.

The Health Department has stepped up mosquito control programs, and with the assistance of the Vector Borne Disease Unit of the Ohio Department of Health, is attempting to maintain a close surveillance of the mosquito population here.

Specialists surveyed the county Tuesday and Wednesday to draw additional blood specimens from birds and mammals, and light traps were installed in several locations to capture adult mosquitoes.

The trapped mosquitoes not only provide specialists with an idea of the effectiveness of current control programs, but also allows them to test for virus activity.

No virus activity has been reported in mosquitoes thus far, Kramer said. Kramer is worried, however, about the weather, and the fact that human cases of encephalitis have been reported in Texas and Kansas, where mosquito seasons are earlier.

"The dry, hot weather we have been experiencing has decreased the breeding areas for pest mosquitoes," he said, "but has increased the breeding areas for the Culex mosquitoes, which carry and transmit St. Louis encephalitis."

The lack of rainfall has stagnated many streams, ponds, ditches, and catch basins which make favorable breeding conditions for Culex mosquitoes, he said.

Without adequate rainfall to flush out these areas, breeding continues in ever increasing intensity.

Kramer noted that while Culex mosquitoes prefer to feed on birds, they will attack man when in increased populations.

Pest mosquitoes such as the Aedes breed in temporary rainpools and woodland pools. These types of mosquitoes are a nuisance to man but seldom carry or transmit diseases.

The Health Department has an ongoing mosquito control program consisting of larvaciding and adulticiding.

During the larvaciding portion of the control program, all areas where mosquitoes are known to breed are treated every seven days with a chemical to kill the larvae.

Adult mosquitoes are sprayed and killed with malathion, a chemical which is deadly on contact.

An ultra low volume mist machine, which breaks the chemical into minute particles almost invisible to the eye, is used to accomplish the spraying.

Highly populated areas such as cities, towns, and trailer parks are sprayed every five days, weather permitting.

Less populated areas are not treated because "it would be ineffective in reducing the adult mosquito populations in those areas," Kramer said.

Homeowners can help protect themselves from mosquitoes, Kramer said, by eliminating breeding sites on their properties. Adult mosquitoes rarely venture more than a mile from their breeding sites.

Containers or low lying areas which can hold water for seven days or longer are potential breeding sites for mosquitoes. Mosquito breeding sites commonly found around homes are tin cans, old tires, bird baths, catch basins, swimming and wading pools, plugged gutters.

County residents who have questions about mosquitoes or complaints should contact Kramer at the Health Department.

Residents Upset Over Meeting Cancellation

Residents bordering PPG Industries south of Circleville are "disappointed and quite upset" about the company's apparent decision to postpone Tuesday's planned air pollution abatement mediation session.

"Citizens down here were calm and contained before PPG said they refused to meet with us," said Mrs. Lawrence Wright, 271 Monticello St., whose verified complaint against the company was responsible for a meeting last Thursday with Ohio Environmental Protection Agency officials.

"But it's a different ball game now," Mrs. Wright said she was first notified of the meeting's cancellation by a neighbor, Mabel Myers, who received a telephone call from the OEPA Friday. Mrs. Wright received a later phone call from OEPA attorney William Miller to verify the information.

Mrs. Wright said Miller gave her no reason for the cancellation, although Mrs. Myers said she was told that PPG wanted to meet solely with Mrs. Wright in a "private audience".

The Tuesday meeting between PPG and the neighboring residents was set up Thursday by the EPA officials after talking with both groups. PPG Industries was expected to announce plans to clean-up the air around the plant at the meeting, Miller said.

Residents have complained of "toxic fumes" from PPG Industries since its construction in 1963, and although the plant has attempted to solve the problem in the past, residents still feel like "prisoners" in their homes, according to Mrs. Wright.

News For Homemakers

By BEVERLY SEYMOUR BECHTEL
County Extension Agent,
Home Economics

Home canning may be a practical way to save money if a member of your family is on a low-salt or low-sugar diet. If you have a garden, you may want to can some of the vegetables and fruits especially for this person.

Sugar and salt used in regular home canning are for flavor only, says Evelyn Gray, Extension nutritionist at The Ohio State University. They do not affect the keeping quality of the canned food, she explains.

Dietetic packs are expensive foods because the quantity handled is small and requires different procedures from regular foods. Also, special preservatives are used on some to retain color and texture, says Miss Gray.

If you are planning for home preservation, she suggests that you consider:

1. Container size. Pints and half pints are usually the best for individual servings, but unsalted vegetables could be prepared for the whole family.

2. Quality of product. As in other canning, food should be good quality, and handled carefully.

3. Storage space. Do you have space to store properly (canned or frozen) foods under desirable conditions? Frozen: 0 to -5 degrees F; canned: cool, dark and dry.

Home canning is especially adaptable to low-sodium and diabetic diets. Here is where you can make real savings on home preservation.

To prepare vegetables for a low-sodium (low-salt) diet, simply omit the salt, says the nutritionist. The amount used is for flavor and has no preservation effect.

This does not mean the food will be salt-free. For example, 100 grams of green beans would contain the following amounts of salt: raw, 7 mg.; cooked, drained (there is evidence of mineral loss by draining vegetables), 4 mg.; canned, 236 mg.; and canned-low-sodium, 2 mg. Or with spinach, the amounts would be raw, 71 mg.; cooked, drained, 50 mg.; canned, 236 mg.; and canned-low-sodium, 34 mg.

Fruits canned without sugar will have some loss in quality because sugar helps retain texture, color and flavor. There are several choices in sugar-less canning: (a) without liquid, (b) crush or slice — and can in its own juice, (c) in juice extracted from other fruit, and (d) in water.

If sugar substitutes are to be used, add them just before serving. Bitterness and off flavors develop when substitutes are used in canning.

Home canners are at a disadvantage in canning fruits without sugar. They do not have the equipment (or use additives) that commercial canners do; therefore, they cannot control quality to the same degree. Fruit will soften, and there is some loss of color with flavor changes.

In addition to the new soybean headers which have been introduced during the past 4 years, engineers from the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center and the Ohio State University as well as industry will explain how soybean harvest losses can be reduced to the 3 per cent loss level.

Corn and Soybean Day will be held at the Farm Science Review Site, 2400 Case Road. Agricultural engineering topics will be featured in the morning and agronomy topics in the afternoon. Registration begins at 9 a.m. Lunch can be purchased at the site. The event is sponsored by the OARDC in cooperation with the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service and The Ohio University.

Autra is a 5-year-old purebred Holstein cow that just completed her fourth lactation with a record breaking effort of 29,890 pounds of milk and 1060 pounds of butterfat. This production effort is thought to be the highest ever recorded for a Pickaway County cow. There were only six cows in Ohio that produced more than 30,000 pounds of milk last year, and Autra was close to this figure.

News For Homemakers

Home canning may be a practical way to save money if a member of your family is on a low-salt or low-sugar diet. If you have a garden, you may want to can some of the vegetables and fruits especially for this person.

Sugar and salt used in regular home canning are for flavor only, says Evelyn Gray, Extension nutritionist at The Ohio State University. They do not affect the keeping quality of the canned food, she explains.

Dietetic packs are expensive foods because the quantity handled is small and requires different procedures from regular foods. Also, special preservatives are used on some to retain color and texture, says Miss Gray.

If you are planning for home preservation, she suggests that you consider:

1. Container size. Pints and half pints are usually the best for individual servings, but unsalted vegetables could be prepared for the whole family.

2. Quality of product. As in other canning, food should be good quality, and handled carefully.

3. Storage space. Do you have space to store properly (canned or frozen) foods under desirable conditions? Frozen: 0 to -5 degrees F; canned: cool, dark and dry.

Home canning is especially adaptable to low-sodium and diabetic diets. Here is where you can make real savings on home preservation.

To prepare vegetables for a low-sodium (low-salt) diet, simply omit the salt, says the nutritionist. The amount used is for flavor and has no preservation effect.

This does not mean the food will be salt-free. For example, 100 grams of green beans would contain the following amounts of salt: raw, 7 mg.; cooked, drained (there is evidence of mineral loss by draining vegetables), 4 mg.; canned, 236 mg.; and canned-low-sodium, 2 mg. Or with spinach, the amounts would be raw, 71 mg.; cooked, drained, 50 mg.; canned, 236 mg.; and canned-low-sodium, 34 mg.

Fruits canned without sugar will have some loss in quality because sugar helps retain texture, color and flavor. There are several choices in sugar-less canning: (a) without liquid, (b) crush or slice — and can in its own juice, (c) in juice extracted from other fruit, and (d) in water.

If sugar substitutes are to be used, add them just before serving. Bitterness and off flavors develop when substitutes are used in canning.

Home canners are at a disadvantage in canning fruits without sugar. They do not have the equipment (or use additives) that commercial canners do; therefore, they cannot control quality to the same degree. Fruit will soften, and there is some loss of color with flavor changes.

Small Black Beetles Are Big Pain In Neck

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

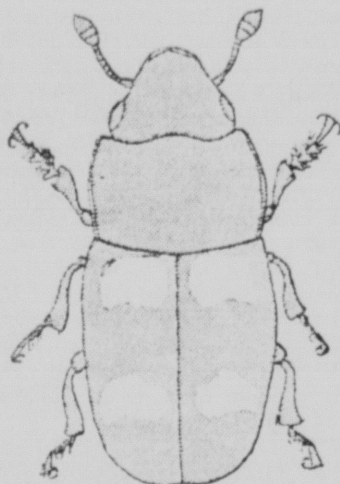

Picnickers, cook-outers, roadside marketers, fruit and vegetable growers beware of the "spoilers." It is in the middle of that time of year again when the picnic (sap) beetles make their appearance. Just plan a picnic, or raise a crop, and the word seems to get to those beetles and it isn't very long before they get into everyone's hair, ears, as well as the potato salad, melons, strawberries — you name it! Maybe you haven't had this experience yet.

The picnic beetle is not new. In fact, it has been a curiosity for over 100 years. It has been called a lot of different names, a few which I can't print, but Glischrochilus q. quadrisignatus (Say) is its official handle. Surprisingly, it has no accepted common name. Either picnic beetle, or 4-spotted sap beetle will likely be its name when the experts get around to naming it. There are over 130 species of sap beetle in the United States. The little rascal seems to be all over the northern United States and Canada, but not from Georgia south. Maybe it is a yankee bug! How about it Reb?

The literature says that the adults are attracted to human food, especially fruits and vegetables. However, decaying plant materials, fermenting tree sap, flowers, fungi, and carrion may also be added to the list, and I bet you have a few, too.

Life History: The winter is spent as an adult in protected places, primarily in or above the soil. Adults come out of hibernation in early spring. Egg-laying begins in late April, during May, and part of June. Eggs are laid near decaying plant material apparently at random on the soil. One female in captivity laid 358 eggs over a period of 70 days. She was a good one! Typical habitat for the developing larvae is decaying vegetable material either in direct contact with the soil, or totally buried.

It takes about a month from egg to adult. Adults emerge in late June and early July. This year they really came out in force. The adults live a long time and during the summer you'll find old and new adults in your potato salad. There appears to be only one generation per year as the new adults don't lay eggs until the following spring; although there may possibly be a second generation in some areas. This is still a little "hazy" in the literature.

Well, there you have the general development, but let's get down to the business of how to get rid of them.

Sanitation: I'm convinced that sanitation will work, but it is not easy to eliminate everything that they are attracted to. Do what you can to keep all garbage in tightly tied bags and in garbage cans with tight-fitting lids. Ripened fruits and vegetables must be picked, regularly; this includes damaged and fallen ones, too.

Attracting Stations: I honestly believe that you can get some relief from the beetles by setting up some bait stations. Let's take advantage of the fact that they are attracted to certain foods. The literature indicates that mashed-up bananas are the strongest attractors. Put over-ripe bananas, or other rotting fruits, on paper plates. Place these "stations" several yards away from the center of activity (picnic area, etc.) A half dozen or so should do the job. Be sure to collect the "bait stations" some time during the day. Place them in a disposable plastic bag which you should secure tightly.

overemphasized," Roy Dunkle said. Crops should be reported on a field-by-field basis.

Dunkle, chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service committee explained that the information may be needed to determine eligibility for participation in 1978 programs. If a set-aside is required for 1978, proposed farm legislation provides that it may be based on a specific percentage of the acreage planted in 1977.

"It is anticipated that the 1978 programs will apply to all producers, those without allotments as well as those with allotments," Dunkle said. "All 1977 grain producers should report their acres, even if they have not had cause to do so in the past because they had no allotment."

ASCS previously asked for crop acreages before harvest. However, barley and wheat farmers have not been able to comply in many cases. "Farmers who have harvested barley or wheat should report the acreage as soon as possible, while evidence of the crop is still apparent," Dunkle said.

Applicants for all ASCS programs will be given equal consideration without regard to race, color, sex, creed or national origin.

Small Black Beetles Are Big Pain In Neck

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

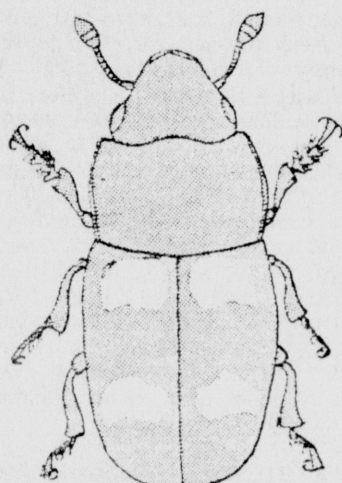

Picnickers, cook-outs, roadside marketers, fruit and vegetable growers beware of the "spoilers." It is in the middle of that time of year again when the picnic (sap) beetles make their appearance. Just plan a picnic, or raise a crop, and the word seems to get to those beetles and it isn't very long before they get into everyone's hair, ears, as well as the potato salad, melons, strawberries — you name it! Maybe you haven't had this experience yet.

The picnic beetle is not new. In fact, it has been a curiosity for over 100 years. It has been called a lot of different names, a few which I can't print, but Glischrochilus q. quadrisignatus (Say) is its official handle. Surprisingly, it has no accepted common name. Either picnic beetle, or 4-spotted sap beetle will likely be its name when the experts get around to naming it. There are over 130 species of sap beetle in the United States. The little rascal seems to be all over the northern United States and Canada, but not from Georgia south. Maybe it is a yankee bug! How about it Reb?

The literature says that the adults are attracted to human food, especially fruits and vegetables. However, decaying plant materials, fermenting tree sap, flowers, fungi, and carrion may also be added to the list, and I bet you have a few, too.

Life History: The winter is spent as an adult in protected places, primarily in or above the soil. Adults come out of hibernation in early spring. Egg-laying begins in late April, during May, and part of June. Eggs are laid near decaying plant material apparently at random on the soil. One female in captivity laid 358 eggs over a period of 70 days. She was a good one! Typical habitat for the developing larvae is decaying vegetable material either in direct contact with the soil, or totally buried.

It takes about a month from egg to adult. Adults emerge in late June and early July. This year they really came out in force. The adults live a long time and during the summer you'll find old and new adults in your potato salad. There appears to be only one generation per year as the new adults don't lay eggs until the following spring; although there may possibly be a second generation in some areas. This is still a little "hazy" in the literature.

Well, there you have the general development, but let's get down to the business of how to get rid of them.

Sanitation: I'm convinced that sanitation will work, but it is not easy to eliminate everything that they are attracted to. Do what you can to keep all garbage in tightly tied bags and in garbage cans with tight-fitting lids. Ripened fruits and vegetables must be picked, regularly; this includes damaged and fallen ones, too.

Attracting Stations: I honestly believe that you can get some relief from the beetles by setting up some bait stations. Let's take advantage of the fact that they are attracted to certain foods. The literature indicates that mashed-up bananas are the strongest attractors. Put over-ripe bananas, or other rotting fruits, on paper plates. Place these "stations" several yards away from the center of activity (picnic area, etc.) A half dozen or so should do the job. Be sure to collect the "bait stations" some time during the day. Place them in a disposable plastic bag which you should secure tightly.

Farmers Urged To Submit Acreage Reports Of Grain

Pickaway County farmers are urged to report their 1977 acreage of barley, corn, grain sorghum and wheat to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. "The importance of correctly reporting acreages cannot be

Farm Storage Increase Needed

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) is authorizing loans for building "wet" storage structures under its Farm Facility Loan Program. Department officials feel this action will be of particular benefit to dairymen and livestock feeders who need storage for high moisture grain and grain silage.

Under this Farm Facility Loan Program, eligible producers can borrow up to 85 per cent of the cost of buying and installing needed storage facilities and drying equipment, not to exceed $50,000. In general, provisions applying to current farm facility loans will be applicable to loans for wet storage. The interest rate is currently 7 per cent.

The Farm Facility Loan Program is administered by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) through its county offices.

overemphasized," Roy Dunkle said. Crops should be reported on a field-by-field basis.

Dunkle, chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service committee explained that the information may be needed to determine eligibility for participation in 1978 programs. If a set-aside is required for 1978, proposed farm legislation provides that it may be based on a specific percentage of the acreage planted in 1977.

"It is anticipated that the 1978 programs will apply to all producers, those without allotments as well as those with allotments," Dunkle said. "All 1977 grain producers should report their acres, even if they have not had cause to do so in the past because they had no allotment."

ASCS previously asked for crop acreages before harvest. However, barley and wheat farmers have not been able to comply in many cases. "Farmers who have harvested barley or wheat should report the acreage as soon as possible, while evidence of the crop is still apparent," Dunkle said.

Albert Finney Sings

If the 22 members of the House ad hoc energy committee who voted in favor of doubling the federal tax on gasoline (from four to eight cents a gallon) over a two year period thought they were voting for energy conservation, they are easily fooled.

A seven percent increase in the price of gasoline between October, 1977 and October, 1979 is too little to have any effect on consumption. Inflation and the demands of OPEC will have a stronger effect on pricing--and consumption--than a two-cent hike this year and another two cents in 1979.

What the committee was approving was a revenue-raising bill, not an energy-saving one. There is nothing wrong with a fund to support such endeavors as mass transit, energy research and state transportation aid, unless such a fund becomes the foundation of a new overlapping bureaucratic structure. But stop the pretense over its purpose.

As it happens, the price of gasoline very likely will continue to rise in the near future. By October of 1979, the 1977 price will be looked upon as the "good old days." The purported federal tax hike will be a small part of the increase.

Fuel Tax Misleading

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE
NEW YORK — "When I was 12," says British actor Albert Finney, "I wrote a poem to a girl. She never replied. No acknowledgement whatever."

After that experience, he never even read a poem, at least until after he became an actor. "And I never wrote anything ever, ever."

Given that background, it's remarkable that 41-year-old Finney has just produced an LP album which is composed of a dozen brooding, rhyming poetic lyrics he has written. They have been set to music by his friend, Denis King, and Albert half-sings, half-speaks the songs in an engaging style that predecessors Richard Burton and Rex Harrison would envy.

"I don't know what kind of singer I am," smiles the actor, who in England is referred to as the successor to Laurence Olivier, "But I do know I had a great time working on those lyrics. Actually using words as tools to express myself gave me a pleasure I had not realized before in anything I've done. There's a big part of me that is kind of reflective. I like to look out windows a great deal.

"On some days, it's easier than others. I would look out the window and everything would just come to me. Other times, I would look at the paper before me, blank, and say 'Why do I have to fill this paper?' I associated it with sitting at a desk in school faced with the assignment of writing a composition. It was an imposition."

Finney never did much like school. The son of a bookmaker in Lancashire, in the heart of industrial England, he was keen on cricket, rugby, soccer, tennis and climbing - and poor in the classroom. He had no yen for the theater, either. "You know, I only went to the legitimate theatre twice as an adolescent, and the only reason I did that was because they were presenting Shakespeare and, because it was Shakespeare, you got off your lessons to go."

Poor Shakespeare. "He alienates a lot of young minds. Adolescents associate him with some kind of task. The trouble with Shakespeare is that he wrote to be performed, and to have to read him, when you are young, is a chore. Kids say, quite naturally, 'Why do they talk so funny?'"

Finney's love-alienation with the Bard continued throughout his early career as an actor. He performed leading roles in "Julius Caesar," "Macbeth," and "Henry V" — and one night was called upon in his dressing room by the late Charles Laughton. Finney recalls, "He told me I was a terrible Macbeth, but I probably would do for some small role in 'The Party' in which he was about to perform in London."

It was the beginning of a soaring career on the stage and in film. Finney is best known among the movie-goers of America for his starring movie roles as "Tom Jones," as "Scrooge" in the musical version of the Dickens masterpiece, and as Inspector Hercule Poirot in "Murder on the Orient Express."

But a more limited audience acclaims his stage performances, particularly in "Luther" and "A Day in the Death of Joe Egg." And last year he performed "Hamlet" in England. His comment: "The more I come to grips with him (Shakespeare), the more I'm now prepared to admit that he had some talent."

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (A) - Still another survey tells us that mandatory retirement at age 65 is favored by a majority of top management, and that in fact they consider it necessary.

But even with this additional input to the controversy we are left with questions we might never resolve. Isn't such an attitude flagrantly discriminatory? Isn't it wasteful of skills years in the making?

There is no end to the questions. Isn't it morally and politically wrong to force people onto a Social Security system that is already terribly overburdened? Is enforced idleness nothing but a denial of human rights?

More: Isn't there something inconsistent about a nation's attitude that denies discrimination because of age, that encourages an individual to center his life around a job — and which then dumps him or her suddenly at 65?

But in the most recent survey of attitudes, by William M. Mercer Inc., which calls itself the nation's largest employee benefit consulting firm, a lot of these considerations weren't paramount in the minds of those queried.

This was a survey of senior management, and that makes a very big difference in many cases.

Senior management usually is well pensioned. Having been well paid, senior managers have investment accounts. They have contacts; many of them continue to serve on boards or as consultants.

"Contrary to popular belief," said A. J. C. Smith, Mercer president, "senior management does not seem to want to continue working indefinitely," an attitude that under the circumstances of executive retirement would seem to be understandable.

More so than those in other corporate positions, the senior executive can ease his way into the world of retirement, comfortably and often at his or her own pace. The talents involved are still in demand.

For the blue collar worker this usually isn't the case. Skills developed over a lifetime of work are suddenly unwanted. Should the individual attempt to use those skills, he might find he can do so only at the expense of cutting into his Social Security payments.

The issues involved in retirement, executives or other, have evolved over more than a century and roughly coincide with the development of the country from rural to urban, from agrarian to industrial.

Centuries of custom permitted the farm economy to accommodate the needs of both young and old. Three generations were able to gracefully combine their talents and their productive work.

The transition of power and authority was smooth. No bureaucratically computed age determined what a member could or could not do. The older generation eased off the work load, passing on its talents and chores to other.

There was a place, a role, a duty, a responsibility, a need for all members of the farm family. But that isn't so in industrial society.

Some advantage from tobacco seems to be on the horizon. Not as far as smoking is concerned! The harmful effects of tobacco on the lungs, the heart, the brain and the circulatory system are a source of great concern to scientists. So the new scientific bonus from tobacco does not give clearance to continue the smoking habit. The interesting fact is that a special protein has been extracted from fresh tobacco. Dr. Donald W. DeJong, of the Department of Agriculture's Research Laboratory in North Carolina, says that "The yield of solid protein would amount to 50,000 tons from the million acres of tobacco grown in the United States alone."

In a complicated technique, these proteins are separated from cured tobacco. It is believed that this tobacco leaf protein "could open the way to a new source of protein in a food-short world." In a world where malnutrition is still rampant, a constructive role seems to have been found for the tobacco leaf.

greater advantage of glaucoma sufferers. Timolol is being investigated by eye doctors all over the country, and the consensus is that it has no side effects and seems to be as effective as any drug in use today.

Dr. Thom J. Zimmerman and Dr. Herbert E. Kaufman, at the University of Florida, in Gainesville, have been using the drug effectively. One drop a day seems to be all that is necessary for this anti-glaucoma treatment.

Extended studies are being made in order to further verify the potential of this new drug.

A brilliantly conceived machine is being tried in an effort to predict the ovulation time of women. This is the time when the female egg is produced in the ovary.

Dr. Harold J. Kosasky, of the Harvard Medical School, and Dr. Louis E. Kopito, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, have devised this electronic instrument.

It is believed that the machine will be a valuable tool to identify women who do not ovulate and for detecting the time of ovulation in women who have stopped taking contraceptive pill.

Of course, its greatest advantage will be as an added method of studying infertility and possible ways of correcting it.

But a more limited audience acclaims his stage performances, particularly in "Luther" and "A Day in the Death of Joe Egg." And last year he performed "Hamlet" in England. His comment: "The more I come to grips with him (Shakespeare), the more I'm now prepared to admit that he had some talent."

Finney's new LP, titled simply "Albert Finney's Album," is his first experiment into the medium of recordings, and he was surprised when Motown decided to distribute it. "I associated Motown with black soul singers — with Stevie Wonder and Diana Ross, the Supremes. When I got a call that they were keen on my record, I was hugely surprised. When they asked if I'd like to come over to America and promote it, I thought well, why not? It gives me an excuse to see some of this country I've never had time to see before. It's been extraordinary. I was at the Grand Canyon, for instance, at sunset. That's some beautiful sight, isn't it? As it dipped below the horizon, there was a huge round of applause — for the sun. I've never seen anything like it, and my first thought was, I hope it doesn't take curtain calls."

Although he is best-known here for his movies, Albert Finney consistently resists urgings to come to Hollywood and make more films. "I do prefer the stage," he says, "because some electrical current circulates between you and the audience. You use up energy for the camera, and I don't know that you get energy back — except in real estate and swimming pools. But we're all different. Michael Caine, another English actor, only wants to make films. I much prefer the stage. Curious. But maybe subconsciously the reason I resist films is that I fear I might like being a lotus eater in Hollywood. I suspect that I'm afraid of that, and that the discipline of the theatre — just having to be there at a certain time — is the best way of avoiding total decay."

Finney has been married twice, each time to actresses. He has been separated for two years from Anouk Aimee. "I now have another lady I've been seeing for 10 months."

Another actress? "Yes," he grins. "I don't meet many biologists in my work."

Herc's eating problem surfaced recently when he tried to devour the heating bulb in his wooden chest.

After veterinarian found that Herc had swallowed most of the glass bulb, he got eight quarter-pound guinea pigs for dessert to ease his indigestion. That's when the bulge began to show.

In 1916, before the U.S. entered World War I, German saboteurs blew up a munitions plant on Black Tom Island near Jersey City, N.J.

In 1918, Sergeant Joyce Kilmer, the American poet who wrote "Trees," was killed in action in France during World War I.

In 1969, President Richard M. Nixon, on an Asian tour, visited South Vietnam, conferring with officials and visiting American troops.

In 1973, former White House Chief of Staff H.R. Haldeman told the Senate Watergate Committee that he and President Nixon were innocent of any involvement in the Watergate break-in and cover-up.

Ten years ago: A National Day of Prayer for an end to racial disorders was held in churches and synagogues throughout the United States.

Five years ago: The Soviet Union, observing Navy day, boasted that its naval forces could detect and destroy an enemy vessel anywhere in the world.

One year ago: At least 100,000 people were reported to have died in a widespread earthquake in northeastern China that shattered the city of Tangshan.

Today's birthdays: British sculptor Henry Moore is 79. Pianist Gerald Moore is 78. Singer Paul Anka is 36.

Thought for today: Life is what you make it, but for the jaywalker it is if you make it. — Anonymous.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Some advantage from tobacco seems to be on the horizon. Not as far as smoking is concerned! The harmful effects of tobacco on the lungs, the heart, the brain and the circulatory system are a source of great concern to scientists. So the new scientific bonus from tobacco does not give clearance to continue the smoking habit. The interesting fact is that a special protein has been extracted from fresh tobacco. Dr. Donald W. DeJong, of the Department of Agriculture's Research Laboratory in North Carolina, says that "The yield of solid protein would amount to 50,000 tons from the million acres of tobacco grown in the United States alone."

In a complicated technique, these proteins are separated from cured tobacco. It is believed that this tobacco leaf protein "could open the way to a new source of protein in a food-short world." In a world where malnutrition is still rampant, a constructive role seems to have been found for the tobacco leaf.

Early detection of glaucoma and intensive treatment are the answer to this great threat to normal vision. Modern drugs have been remarkably successful in controlling the progress of glaucoma.

Now, for the first time in years, a new drug is being studied for the even greater advantage of glaucoma sufferers. Timolol is being investigated by eye doctors all over the country, and the consensus is that it has no side effects and seems to be as effective as any drug in use today.

Dr. Thom J. Zimmerman and Dr. Herbert E. Kaufman, at the University of Florida, in Gainesville, have been using the drug effectively. One drop a day seems to be all that is necessary for this anti-glaucoma treatment.

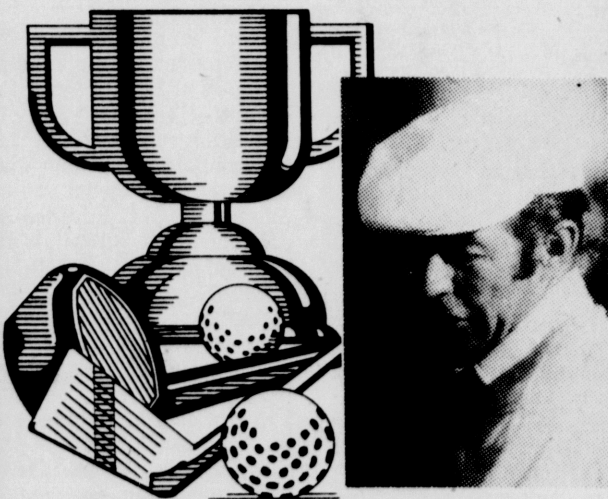

Extended studies are being made in order to further verify the potential of this new drug.

A brilliantly conceived machine is being tried in an effort to predict the ovulation time of women. This is the time when the female egg is produced in the ovary.

Dr. Harold J. Kosasky, of the Harvard Medical School, and Dr. Louis E. Kopito, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, have devised this electronic instrument.

It is believed that the machine will be a valuable tool to identify women who do not ovulate and for detecting the time of ovulation in women who have stopped taking contraceptive pill.

Of course, its greatest advantage will be as an added method of studying infertility and possible ways of correcting it.

Ohio National Guard Plans Intensive Recruiting Drive

COLUMBUS — An intensive two-month National Guard recruiting campaign is set to kick off for the citizen-soldiers of the Ohio National Guard on August 1.

According to Major General James C. Clem, the State Adjutant General, the campaign, known as "Get Your Guard Up," is part of a nationwide effort to boost the ranks of both the Army and Air National Guard.

Captain Dennis M. Jankowski, the Ohio Army Guard's Recruiting and Retention Manager, indicated Buckeye Guard members will begin soliciting new members by personal contact and through sophisticated public service announcements in newspapers and on radio and television across the state. The advertising will feature personalities like former pro football players Rosie Grier and Alex Karras.

The state goal during this recruiting campaign calls for a ten per cent increase in Army Guard personnel and a five per cent boost in the strength of the Ohio Air Guard, Captain Jankowski indicated. Those interested in finding out more about the "Get Your Guard Up" campaign should contact their local armory or call toll-free 1-800-282-7310.

Rhodes Receives Courts Measure

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An omnibus bill creating countywide municipal courts in Crawford, Hocking, and Jackson counties went to Gov. James A. Rhodes on Friday after the House approved Senate amendments 89-0.

The same measure, by Rep. John A. Begala, D-62 Kent, eliminates existing mayors' courts in Bucyrus, Galion, Logan, and Wellston.

Begala's bill also creates six new municipal judgeships; one each in Canton, Chillicothe, Crawford County, Hocking County, and Jackson County — all to be elected in 1977 — and one in Portage County to be elected in 1979.

Thieves Take CB Radio

A citizen band radio was taken from a parked car last night in front of Bert's Bar.

Rozanne Jenkins, 126 Starkey Drive, told Circleville Police that there was no sign of forced entry into the vehicle. The 23-channel CB radio and antenna are valued at $250. Thieves also took three spark plug wires from the car.

Johnny Conrad, 132 Plum St., told Police Ptl. Don Barton that vandals have committed at least $2,000 damage to a home at 205 Pontious Lane.

The damage has occurred within the last three months, he said, and neighbors have seen three youths around the house in the past several weeks.

Agents from London's Bureau of Criminal Identification and Investigation were summoned to the home to take photographs of imprints of bare feet and tennis shoes on the walls of the home.

10 'Don'ts' For Wives

DEAR ABBY: You are always so short and to the point. Have you a list of 10 tips for wives to follow if they want a successful marriage?

NEW BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: No. But I'll compose one.

1. Don't keep telling him about all the other men you could have married.

2. Don't bring out the bills at breakfast time.

3. Don't try to start a conversation with him while he's reading or watching a sports event on TV.

4. Don't correct him in front of other people.

5. Don't try to make him jealous.

6. Don't bad-mouth his relatives.

7. Don't put a shirt in his drawer with a button missing.

8. Don't call him at work unless it's absolutely necessary.

9. Don't use his razor.

10. Don't threaten to leave him unless you have a better place to go.

And next week, I'll print my 10 tips for husbands.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 41-year-old woman who was divorced last year after a miserable 20-year marriage. I get $800 a month alimony. I have one daughter who is 19 and away at college.

Three months ago I met a young man at a church singles' meeting and it was love at first sight. He's the most sensitive and charming man I've ever met. He says I'm the only woman he's ever loved, and in bed, on a scale of one to ten, he rates a ten.

He's recently divorced and has a 4-year-old son living with his ex-wife. He moved here from the Midwest and is looking for a job.

Now the problem: He's only 27, but he's very mature for his age and says the age difference doesn't bother him.

He wants to marry me, but if I accept, I'll lose my alimony. I've considered having him move in with me, but it might cost me the respect of my daughter and parents which means a lot to me. What are your thoughts on this?

IN LOVE

DEAR IN: The age difference may pose problems later on, but I see bigger problems now. Since he's unemployed, moving in with you might be a great move for him, but feeling as you do about your daughter and parents, I don't advise it. If it's love, it will last. Take your time.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SUFFERED A SETBACK": It's no disgrace to slip and fall, but you aren't really a failure unless you say, "Somebody pushed me."

Regional Mini-Conference Set For Ohio Arts Council

The Scioto Society, Inc., producers of the outdoor drama "Tecumseh!", will sponsor a regional mini-conference in cooperation with the Ohio Arts Council, on Aug. 30 at the Holiday Inn in Chillicothe.

The purpose of the conference is to provide an opportunity for all persons and organizations interested and involved in artistic enterprises in South-central Ohio to personally meet with the Ohio Arts Council staff, and participate in the scheduled meetings. Topics of these meetings include Programming, Public Relations-Publicity, Fundraising, Grantsmanship and Evaluation.

In keeping with its goals of cultural, historical, educational and economic development of Southcentral Ohio, The Scioto Society, Inc. express pride in being part of this initial endeavor to bring better understanding of the Ohio Arts Council's functions to this area, according to W. L. Mundell, President of the Society.

"We appreciate the effort of the Ohio Arts Council to reach out to the people of this state, and to seek a better mutual understanding of our needs and their capabilities," Mundell said.

This pilot program could be the first of continuing annual conferences with the Ohio Arts Council, according to Mundell. He praised James Edgy, executive director to the OAC and his staff for taking the initiative in this people-to-people program.

It is recommended that each interested organization send at least two representatives to the conference in order to attend sessions that are scheduled simultaneously. Groups and individuals, including school officials, civic leaders, city and county officials are welcome to attend this free conference.

For registration information contact The Scioto Society, Inc., P.O. Box 73, Chillicothe, Ohio 45601, or call (614) 775-4100. Information is also available through The Ohio Arts Council 50 West Broad Street, Columbus, Ohio 43215.

Elvis Fans Prove Loyal

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — What 42-year-old overweight singer is worth a wait in line of as long as three days just to buy tickets?

Elvis Presley, that's who.

His fans demonstrated their devotion to the aging rock 'n' roll singer this week by waiting in long lines here and in Utica to buy the 8,000 tickets for his concerts next month.

The marathon wait ran counter to a report by the Literary Gazette, a Soviet journal in Moscow, which claimed Elvis "has been mercilessly tossed onto the scrap heap of those who have gone out of fashion."

The Elvis fans began lining up here Monday and by Thursday morning some 400 fans were outside the Onondaga County War Memorial to buy tickets for next month's visit by Elvis Presley.

Similar lines were forming 50 miles east of here in Utica where Elvis fans waited to buy tickets for a concert there next month.

Candy should be cooked in a good-sized heavy pot. If you haven't the right utensil in your kitchen and do own a pressure cooker that is heavy, use the pot from the cooker.

Dear Abby:

10 'Don'ts' For Wives

DEAR ABBY: You are always so short and to the point. Have you a list of 10 tips for wives to follow if they want a successful marriage?

NEW BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: No. But I'll compose one.

1. Don't keep telling him about all the other men you could have married.
2. Don't bring out the bills at breakfast time.
3. Don't try to start a conversation with him while he's reading or watching a sports event on TV.
4. Don't correct him in front of other people.
5. Don't try to make him jealous.
6. Don't bad-mouth his relatives.
7. Don't put a shirt in his drawer with a button missing.
8. Don't call him at work unless it's absolutely necessary.
9. Don't use his razor.
10. Don't threaten to leave him unless you have a better place to go.

And next week, I'll print my 10 tips for husbands.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 41-year-old woman who was divorced last year after a miserable 20-year marriage. I get $800 a month alimony. I have one daughter who is 19 and away at college.

Three months ago I met a young man at a church singles' meeting and it was love at first sight. He's the most sensitive and charming man I've ever met. He says I'm the only woman he's ever loved, and in bed, on a scale of one to ten, he rates a ten.

He's recently divorced and has a 4-year-old son living with his ex-wife. He moved here from the Midwest and is looking for a job.

Now the problem: He's only 27, but he's very mature for his age and says the age difference doesn't bother him.

He wants to marry me, but if I accept, I'll lose my alimony. I've considered having him move in with me, but it might cost me the respect of my daughter and parents which means a lot to me. What are your thoughts on this?

IN LOVE

DEAR IN: The age difference may pose problems later on, but I see bigger problems now. Since he's unemployed, moving in with you might be a great move for him, but feeling as you do about your daughter and parents. I don't advise it. If it's love, it will last. Take your time.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SUFFERED A SETBACK": It's no disgrace to slip and fall, but you aren't really a failure unless you say, "Somebody pushed me."

Regional Mini-Conference Set For Ohio Arts Council

The Scioto Society, Inc., producers of the outdoor drama "Tecumseh!", will sponsor a regional mini-conference in cooperation with the Ohio Arts Council, on Aug. 30 at the Holiday Inn in Chillicothe.

The purpose of the conference is to provide an opportunity for all persons and organizations interested and involved in artistic enterprises in South-central Ohio to personally meet with the Ohio Arts Council staff, and participate in the scheduled meetings. Topics of these meetings include Programming, Public Relations-Publicity, Fundraising, Grantsmanship and Evaluation.

In keeping with its goals of cultural, historical, educational and economic development of Southcentral Ohio, The Scioto Society, Inc. express pride in being part of this initial endeavor to bring better understanding of the Ohio Arts Council's functions to this area, according to W. L. Mundell, President of the Society.

"We appreciate the effort of the Ohio Arts Council to reach out to the people of this state, and to seek a better mutual understanding of our needs and their capabilities," Mundell said.

This pilot program could be the first of continuing annual conferences with the Ohio Arts Council, according to Mundell. He praised James Edgy, executive director to the OAC and his staff for taking the initiative in this people-to-people program.

It is recommended that each interested organization send at least two representatives to the conference in order to attend sessions that are scheduled simultaneously. Groups and individuals, including school officials, civic leaders, city and county officials are welcome to attend this free conference.

For registration information contact The Scioto Society, Inc., P.O. Box 73, Chillicothe, Ohio 45601, or call (614) 775-4100. Information is also available through The Ohio Arts Council 50 West Broad Street, Columbus, Ohio 43215.

Elvis Fans Prove Loyal

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — What 42-year-old overweight singer is worth a wait in line of as long as three days just to buy tickets?

Elvis Presley, that's who.

His fans demonstrated their devotion to the aging rock 'n' roll singer this week by waiting in long lines here and in Utica to buy the 8,000 tickets for his concerts next month.

The marathon wait ran counter to a report by the Literary Gazette, a Soviet journal in Moscow, which claimed Elvis "has been mercilessly tossed onto the scrap heap of those who have gone out of fashion."

The Elvis fans began lining up here Monday and by Thursday morning some 400 fans were outside the Onondaga County War Memorial to buy tickets for next month's visit by Elvis Presley.

Similar lines were forming 50 miles east of here in Utica where Elvis fans waited to buy tickets for a concert there next month.

Candy should be cooked in a good-sized heavy pot. If you haven't the right utensil in your kitchen and do own a pressure cooker that is heavy, use the pot from the cooker.

Niekro, Atlanta Stop Pirates, 5-3

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Phil Niekro's knuckleball was dancing in the dark.

"I don't know what it's going to do when I throw it," said the Atlanta pitcher.

Neither did the hitters Friday night, and as a result the Braves had a 5-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Niekro did a little bit of everything to help beat the Pirates. He had eight assists, three in picking runners off base, made a putout and had a perfect sacrifice bunt that set up a two-run triple by Jerry Royster in the fifth inning.

He even threw in something extra during his night's work—four strikeouts in an inning. It happened in the sixth. He fanned the first two batters before Al Oliver doubled. Rennie Stennett then struck out but reached on a passed ball by catcher Biff Poceroba, before Omar Moreno became the fourth victim of the inning.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Cincinnati Reds edged the St. Louis Cardinals 6-5 in the opener of a doubleheader before losing the second game 10-3; the Los Angeles Dodgers turned back the Montreal Expos 4-1 in a game called in the seventh inning because of rain; the Houston Astros nipped the Chicago Cubs 1-0; the San Francisco Giants blanked the Philadelphia Phillies 7-0 and the New York Mets stopped the San Diego Padres 4-1.

Along with Royster's two-run triple, Jeff Burroughs and Rod Gilbreath smashed home runs for the Braves. Niekro gave up eight hits and struck out seven.

Burroughs hit his 23rd homer of the season into the center field seats in the second inning and Gilbreath hit his fourth of the year in the seventh.

Reds 6-3, Cardinals 5-10
Pitcher Paul Moskau smashed two hits and scored two runs to help Cincinnati beat St. Louis in the first game of their doubleheader and break a six-game Cardinal winning streak.

Keith Hernandez' first grand slam homer capped a nine-run rally off Cincinnati's Jack Billingham in the second inning and helped the Cardinals beat the Reds in the second game.

Dodgers 4, Expos 1
Held hitless by Steve Rogers for the first five innings, Los Angeles bunched three hits in the sixth to score two runs and defeated Montreal behind Doug Rau's four-hitter in a game called in the seventh inning because of rain.

After Rogers fanned Steve Yeager and got Rau to ground out to start the sixth, Dave Lopes singled to center. Bill Russell followed with a triple to the left-field corner to score Lopes and Reggie Smith delivered a check-swing double to score Russell.

Astros 1, Cubs 0
Joe Niekro hurled a four-hitter and Bob Watson's fourth-inning double drove home Cesar Cedeno with the only run of the game as Houston blanked Chicago.

The victory snapped Houston's four-game losing streak as the Cubs maintained their two-game lead over second-place Pittsburgh in the National League East.

Niekro pitched his second complete game of the season, the other coming against the Cubs in his last start on Sunday, and gathered his first shutout since August, 1975.

Giants 7, Phillies 0
Willie McCovey slammed a home run and drove in three runs and Jim Barr scattered eight hits to post his second straight shutout, leading San Francisco over Philadelphia.

Barr, who blanked Montreal Sunday, struck out three and walked two. Barr now has pitched 19 consecutive scoreless innings.

The Giants gave Barr all the runs he needed in the second when Jack Clark tripped as left fielder Greg Luzinski lost his fly ball in the lights. McCovey then hit his home run over the right field fence.

Mets 4, Padres 1
Felix Millan hit a two-run, bases-loaded single in the seventh inning to spark New York over San Diego.

The victory went to Mets starter Jerry Koosman, who struck out eight in seven innings of work, raising his season total to 137, second best in the National League. Koosman allowed only two hits and two walks.

Chisox Slip Past Royals, 11-8

By JOHN NELSON

Alan Bannister figured it was the noisiest crowd he had ever heard at Comiskey Park. Fans numbered 45,919—Chicago's largest home crowd in three years—and the White Sox shortstop was nervous.

"I was tight in the first inning," said Bannister, whose throwing error in that frame led to three unearned runs. "I think we all were because we were so high for this series. We want to win them all."

But he made up for the mistake in the seventh, when he smacked a two-run single that capped a four-run rally and gave the White Sox an 11-8 victory over the Royals Friday night.

The victory gave the White Sox a 4½-game cushion over Kansas City in the American League's West Division.

Bannister's wild throw in the first inning allowed Hal McRae to score, and after two were out, John Mayberry slugged a two-run homer, his 16th of the season, to put the Royals ahead 3-0.

Chicago rallied for six runs in the third—Chet Lemon's homer drove in two and Richie Zisk doubled home a pair—but Kansas City tied it 6-6 in the fifth on George Brett's three-run homer.

Two innings later, the Royals took an 8-6 lead on McRae's RBI single and a bases-loaded walk to Joe Zdeb.

Dave Hamilton, 2-3, the third Chicago pitcher, got the victory, while Mark Littell, 5-4, the third of four Kansas City pitchers, took the loss.

In other AL games, New York blanked Oakland 4-0, Baltimore nipped Seattle 5-4, Boston edged California 6-5 in 10 innings, Detroit beat Texas 13-6, Minnesota downed Cleveland 3-1 and Milwaukee defeated Toronto 7-3.

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Temporary employment is not just a sometimes thing for nearly 3.5 million persons, representing about 3 per cent of the total U.S. labor force, who do part time work on a full-time basis, says Manpower, Inc.

Some 67 per cent of these temporary workers who devote a few hours each day to their jobs are women, who have raised and educated their children and wish to fill spare time or contribute to the family income, the firm reports.

Man Fights Voter Registration

McCONNELSVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Retired teacher Wayne Macklem wants status quo — no voter registration ever in his southeastern Ohio county.

So on Friday he asked a county judge to stop a statewide drive to put an amendment to the state constitution on the fall ballot to require voter registration 30 days in advance of an election.

Judge Forest S. MacDonald of Morgan County Common Pleas Court agreed, and ordered the petition drive to replace Ohio's new Election Day registration law stopped.

MacDonald issued a temporary restraining order against five persons involved in Ohioans for Preservation of Honest Elections, a group trying to change the law.

The instant registration law went into effect earlier this year after the General Assembly overrode a veto by Gov. James A. Rhodes. The law permits registration up to 21 days before an election, or on the day of the balloting. Prior law required Ohioans to register 30 days before an election.

Macklem, 66, contended that the law would require voter registration in Morgan County, forcing registration upon counties like his which previously did not have registration.

"There have been no cases of alleged fraud in those areas (which didn't have pre-election voter registration in the past.) There seems to be no reason why there should be pre-election registration," Macklem said.

The group opposes the instant registration plan because of potential fraud and because of the extra cost to taxpayers.

A report earlier this week by the secretary of state said of the 11 special elections since July 8, when the law took effect, 690 persons registered at the voting place to cast ballots. A total of the 16,174 persons voted in those elections.

"I feel instant registration, which in effect is what we have now, could be used statewide," Macklem said.

Actually, Macklem said, he would be satisfied if there were no registration at all around the state.

The judge set an Aug. 15 hearing date for a temporary injunction. The group needed to gather 307,201 valid signatures on an initiative petition by Aug. 8 to put an amendment to change the new law on the November ballot.

MacDonald said he interpreted his order to stop the petition drive by the Ohioans for Preservation of Honest Elections in all 88 counties.

The group wanted an amendment on the fall ballot to require 30-day advance registration and require that persons vote once in four years or have their registration canceled.

Jean Barren, chairwoman of the group and named in the lawsuit, said Friday she had not been served with the judge's order.

Young Carnie Blasts Citizen-Cheaters

WOODLAND, Wash. (AP) — Next time a carnie yells, "Step right up, folks!" don't walk on by. If he's like 13-year-old Wally Conforto, his feelings will be hurt.

Wally and his father, Blue, are carnival workers and, for both, the appeal of the open road and the myriad of smiling faces every night are too good to leave.

All they ask is that you acknowledge their presence and don't try to cheat them.

"We work hard every day of the week," said the elder Conforto, 32. "And while people think we're ripoffs, it's not true. The cheats in our business are weeded out by us."

Conforto, in the business "ever since I can remember," traveled with his carnival worker parents, married a woman from the carnival and had two of his five sons born on the road.

"People who are born into it can't leave," said Conforto. "We eat, sleep, live and die together."

He said he's tried the "straight world" but couldn't hack it.

"I tried to settle down in Springfield, Ore., working in a sawmill and becoming a good citizen," he said. "It just didn't work. There are too many unhappy people out there."

Man Fights Voter Registration

MCCONNELSVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Retired teacher Wayne Macklem wants status quo — no voter registration ever in his southeastern Ohio county.

So on Friday he asked a county judge to stop a statewide drive to put an amendment to the state constitution on the fall ballot to require voter registration 30 days in advance of an election.

Judge Forest S. MacDonald of Morgan County Common Pleas Court agreed, and ordered the petition drive to replace Ohio's new Election Day registration law stopped.

MacDonald issued a temporary restraining order against five persons involved in Ohioans for Preservation of Honest Elections, a group trying to change the law.

The instant registration law went into effect earlier this year after the General Assembly overrode a veto by Gov. James A. Rhodes. The law permits registration up to 21 days before an election, or on the day of the balloting. Prior law required Ohioans

The vehicle went off the left side of the road and rolled over twice before coming to rest on its right side.

David Sherman, 19, Amanda, was injured 3:40 a.m. Saturday when his truck crashed into a utility pole on Route 752.

Sherman suffered small lacerations to the right side of his face and right leg and knee injuries.

Deputy Jim Dixon said Sherman was driving east when he swerved off the right side of the road to avoid striking a deer in his path. The truck hit and broke off a utility pole about a tenth of a mile west of the Route 674 intersection.
